Iti noa ana, he pito mata. With care, a small kumara will produce a harvest.

The J R McKenzie Trust was established in 1940 by John Robert McKenzie, the founder of the "McKenzie's" chain of department stores. From the time the company started in 1910 until it was sold in 1980, one third of the profits were placed in the Trust for the benefit of the people of New Zealand.

The Trust's goal is to improve the quality of life of New Zealanders who have special needs, or who face disadvantage. The focus is on social, health and developmental needs, especially but not only for children, young people, and people with disabilities.

The Trust makes grants to charitable community organisations that work in these areas. It supports existing services, and also innovative approaches to meeting needs and preventing problems. Grants are made for operating costs; to assist organisations to improve their skills and systems; and to encourage groups to work together. More details can be found in the Financial Report on page 16.

THE TRUST BOARD

The community support started by Sir John has been continued by his son Sir Roy McKenzie, and his grandsons Peter and John. Sir Roy and John are the Personal Trustees.

The Board is assisted by people within the Rotary movement throughout New Zealand. District committees of Rotarians assess local applications, and the Chairs of these committees are Board members.

Other Board members are nominated or appointed because of their knowledge of the community health and social sector.

CHAIRPERSON'S REPORT 2002

GRANT MAKING

This remains the core of the Trust's work. Applications for grants this calendar year have been consistent with previous years – over 700 so far. One of the privileges for us is the contact we have with hundreds of the people in community organisations who do the "real work". Our admiration for their passion and dedication is reinforced each year, if tinged by regret that we are unable to assist more.

INNOVATIVE WORK

The innovative strand of the Trust's work has continued, albeit with reduced resources this year. A highlight has been the three year refugee employment programme, which commenced this year. The Building Pacific Organisations programme has continued, and we continue to look for ways to reach out to Pacific community groups.

It is increasingly clear that we must accept the challenge of supporting new ventures for longer periods. There is clearly a trade-off here, immediately evident in the reduced amount available for other innovative projects because of commitments made in previous years.

We have enjoyed working more closely with other grant making organisations around some of these ventures: the Tindall Foundation, the Projecta Foundation, United Way, the Community Trust of Wellington, the Fledgling Trust and an anonymous trust.

PERSONNEL

We have thanked and farewelled two Trustees, Murray Day and Ross Meadowcroft, both of whom have served very well as Board members and Regional Chairs – Murray for ten years, and Ross for six. Several very long serving Regional Committee members have retired too, including David Ellis, John Hood, Sir Hamish Hay, Gordon Little, Wayne Nyberg, Ron Wilton, Cheryl Colley, Elaine Lunken, Maurice Churton, Tom Wardrop and Ian Wills; many thanks to them all.

Change brings new perspectives and new faces. We are delighted to have new Board members this year – Warren Lindberg, Pania Ellison, David Wright and John Spooner. We also welcome new Regional Committee members, some of whom have been recruited from outside Rotary to extend our knowledge of the community sector.

The work of the Regional Committees remains very important. The network of volunteers stretches across the country.

It has been an honour to serve as Chair this year. Diana Crossan left enormous shoes to fill, but has been very supportive, as indeed have all Trustees. We continue to rely on our two paid staff, Alison and Iain. We supported Iain's Churchill Fellowship trip to Europe, and Alison very capably held the fort in his absence.

TRUST DEED & POLICY DEVELOPMENT

The High Court has recently approved the revised Trust Deed – the culmination of two years' work. The new Deed does not alter objectives, but does bring many other aspects up to date, including appointment of Trustees. It also gives us a document that we can understand! The next step is to update and clarify rules about some procedural matters. We have revised our approach to evaluation of grants. We also look forward to a major strategic review next year.

BEYOND THE TRUST

We endorse the efforts in many areas of health and social services to forge better working relationships between community groups and government agencies. There will probably always be some scepticism and distrust , but progress is to applauded. The move towards a charities commission also appears to be positive.

The J R McKenzie Trust has long believed in the value of fostering philanthropy, and has continued to support the work of Philanthropy New Zealand. There is a renewed sense of dynamism in the grant making scene.

We must again thank the many New Zealanders who generously help us with information and advice – you know who you are!

My best wishes go to everyone concerned with the Trust, and with improving the quality of life in New Zealand, especially for its least advantaged citizens.

Peter Holst, Chair

PAST, PRESENT AND FUTURE

NZFVWO's Tina Reid welcomes guests to the McKenzies' party.

The Trustees are very proud of the history of the Trust, and mindful that they are the current stewards of an organisation gifted to New Zealand by the McKenzie family. This year has seen the completion of some historical research, started to mark the Trust's 60th year. In an attempt to find out more about Sir John McKenzie the man, oral historians from the Alexander Turnbull Library have interviewed several people who knew him personally – family, work colleagues and friends. These first hand impressions indicate a man who was determined and forthright, who maintained a clear separation between home and work, and who preferred to keep out of the grant making role.

Meanwhile in 2002, Sir Roy McKenzie has celebrated his 80th birthday, at a function hosted by the New Zealand Federation of Voluntary Welfare Organisations. The event was informal and fun, a fitting acknowledgement of Roy's massive contribution to the community and voluntary sector, and the people for whom it works. Sir Roy and Lady Shirley were also featured on a television documentary.

With an eye to the future, Executive Director Iain Hines went on a study tour to several European countries, supported by the J R McKenzie Trust and the Winston Churchill Memorial Trust. His main areas of interest were:

- The ways in which grant making organisations work strategically – with longer time frames, using a variety of approaches to make an impact in a chosen area, and in partnerships with other grant makers, government and commercial bodies
- The emergence of "community philanthropy organisations" – new ways to promote generosity and channel it effectively
- Progress in efforts to improve relationships between the government and community sector.

TAIRAWHITI COMMUNITY SERVICES TRUST

KAUMATUA AND KUIA TO LEAD DRUGS BATTLE

Auntie Paki

"We must challenge kaumatua and kuia to in turn challenge whanau about their drug use and other abuses" The Gisborne based Tairawhiti Community Services Trust has recently established 'Kaumatua Wananga Whakahuranga'. This unique community initiative aims to challenge kaumatua and kuia (elders) throughout Tairawhiti to examine their attitudes to alcohol, cannabis and other drug abuse and, in turn, to challenge their whanau of all generations about substance use and associated abuse.

In November 2001 24 kaumatua and kuia representing major hapu (sub tribes) in Tairawhiti were flown to Queen Mary Hospital in Hanmer Springs to observe and learn about the issues facing those participating in the Taha Maori drug recovery programme. Having evaluated these issues, they developed a plan of action for informing and challenging their fellow elders at home.

Led by the proactive drug abuse campaigner Auntie Paki Keefe, the 24 elders split into two groups (one pictured at Tolaga Bay) to facilitate three-day wananga (seminars) at marae throughout Ngati Porou in the north-east and Turanganui A Kiwa in the south-west. The aim was to help other kaumatua and kuia of their hapu to take up the challenge of confronting their whanau.

Each noho marae covers all the major aspects of substance use and abuse, covering the effects on the hinengaro (mind), the wairua (spirituality), the tinana (body) and especially the whanau. Empowered by the information provided and support offered by peers and health agencies, the kaumatua and kuia plan to discuss

CHRISTCHURCH METHODIST MISSION

BREAKING THE CYCLE OF POVERTY AND DEPENDENCE

When the Christchurch Methodist Mission noticed that more than 60 per cent of the visitors to its foodbank were making return visits, it decided to do something about it. The result is the '4C' programme, based on the principles of community, compassion, change and choice.

"In the last 12 months alone more than 4,300 families have visited our foodbank," says the Mission's ER/4C Manager, Brenda Lowe-Johnson. "These are people who need more than just food; the 4C programme is our way of helping them to address and resolve other issues in their lives."

In a pioneering partnership between the Mission and Work & Income New Zealand, people in need get focused, individual attention. This includes ensuring they have the welfare support to which they're entitled, addressing debt and budgeting issues, providing career counselling, and offering opportunities in education and training and work placements.

In the past year, the 4C programme has worked with 166 individuals and families. Of those, 57 are now in education and training, 25 have secured part-time work and 26 are working full-time. And in the past two years, 73 percent of those who completed the 4C programme have never had to return to the Mission's foodbank.

The Mission and Work & Income continue to monitor the long-term effectiveness of this successful programme – an important step in empowering people to 'foresee a better tomorrow'.

HUTT MENTAL HEALTH ORGANISATIONS

JOBS FOR MENTAL HEALTH CONSUMERS

elping people with mental health issues to find and keep jobs is the key focus of 'transitional employment', a model developed and already proven successful overseas.

Now – thanks to the work of community mental health support organisations Take 5 Te Whare Marama, MASH, Time Out and Kites – the model is being trialled in the Hutt Valley, under the name of 'Transitionz Valley'. Transitionz Valley has two components:

- 1. Participants first undertake structured voluntary work in one of the centres to help build their confidence and sense of success in work
- 2. They then move into a time-limited position in open employment.

"People with mental health issues often lack the confidence to work again and put their skills into action," says Take 5 Centre Coordinator Stephanie Cairns. "However, given the right opportunity and the right support, they can overcome this fear – and transitional employment is the best example I've seen of making this happen."

Six months down the track more than 25 people are active in voluntary work, and after 110 contacts with individual employers the project has two positions in which people are re-establishing themselves in the paid workforce.

Of course it will take some time to test the effectiveness of this new approach. Winning the confidence of employers is a challenge.

The J R McKenzie Trust has committed to two years funding.

LITERACY AOTEAROA

PUTTING THE TREATY INTO ACTION

Insuring continuing relevance for the Treaty of Waitangi Literacy Aotearoa – an organisation that offers literacy tuition for adults – has used financial help from the J R McKenzie Trust to develop a 'Treaty Implementation Kit'. The Kit aims to help community organisations that are seeking to implement Te Tiriti o Waitangi in their policies, procedures and structures.

The Kit's development is a four-stage project that includes:

- examining the context of the Treaty, the Treaty documents and outcomes for Maori and the Crown
- recording the experiences of Literacy Aotearoa and three other organisations that have endeavoured to incorporate the Treaty's principles through organisational change
- developing a framework based on organisational models and lessons learned
- creating an outline of the implementation programme, addressing issues and any training required in governance, management and service delivery.

"While time-consuming, the process so far has been very helpful and we've already written the first draft of the Kit," says Bronwyn Yates, Te Tumuaki of Literacy Aotearoa. "We identified plenty of issues along the way and developed solutions without losing sight of the Kit's goals. The outlook is positive – we've already made presentations to organisations keen to use the Kit and feedback has been excellent."

"Implementation will no doubt be a challenge for many organisations, and Literacy Aotearoa is considering options for supporting groups through this. We are conscious that implementing Te Tiriti is an issue for all New Zealanders" says Peter Isaacs, Te Tumuaki of Literacy Aotearoa. Literacy Aotearoa is confident the Kit will prove a useful and highly relevant tool in making the Treaty of Waitangi an integral part of organisational effectiveness.

MENTORING – HELP WHEN YOU NEED IT

The New Zealand Federation of Voluntary Welfare Organisations is just what its name implies – a representative body for more than 120 voluntary social service agencies, from the Alzheimer's Society New Zealand to the YWCA of Aotearoa.

As well as supporting its members, the Federation plays a key role in providing information and training for the voluntary sector. With this in mind, it recently conducted a study of mentoring in the community sector – and as a result has developed a brochure to support and promote the service to its members.

"Mentoring provides enormous benefits for both individuals and organisations – particularly on issues such as governance, management and day-to-day operations," says the Federation's Executive Director, Tina Reid. "It's about enabling and supporting professional strengths, and helping people and organisations to set new, more effective directions."

Interestingly, the study revealed an impressive range of mentoring resources and activities in New Zealand – but it also identified a need to raise the profile of mentoring among voluntary organisations and awareness of how to use it for personal and organisational development as well as specific projects. Thus the brochure: an awareness-raising document that covers the role of mentors as well as practical steps for both finding and being a mentor.

POSITIVE WOMEN

iving with HIV/AIDS often means living with fear and isolation, so the opportunity to meet and share individual experiences is a rare and precious one.

Positive Women runs a range of group and individual support programmes for women and children living with HIV/AIDS in New Zealand. One of its key initiatives is the Positive Women's Residential Retreat, in which HIV-positive women from all over the country gather in Auckland for three days.

In this safe, supportive and confidential environment, the women attend education workshops on living with and managing long-term chronic illness. Topics include pregnancy and women's health issues, coping with depression, treatment advice from HIV specialists, nutrition, and holistic approaches to managing care.

The experience of meeting in this environment can be overwhelming, especially for the first time, so Positive Women ensures lighter moments and plenty of downtime. This year drumming and mosaic workshops provided a fun way to unite and connect this incredibly diverse group of women.

Feedback from the Retreat is overwhelmingly positive. At least 85 percent of women who attend return the following year, with comments including, "life changing", "it was wonderful, I no longer feel afraid", "I felt there was hope to have a full life" and "I felt like I could begin to plan for a future and have hopes and dreams".

"I was able to feel I'm not the only one with HIV and to share our experiences was good. I have isolated myself because I am HIV+."

"It was the first time for me and it was just an incredible feeling, I felt I was not alone any more."

HAUORA O PUKETAPAPA - ROSKILL UNION & COMMUNITY HEALTH

PROVIDING AFFORDABLE HEALTH CARE

or most of us, affordable health care is something we take for granted – but for many people in Mt Roskill and Avondale, having the money to get medical help is a major concern.

Hauora o Puketapapa – Roskill Union & Community Health is a community-based, not-for-profit primary health service set up to provide affordable health care for low-income families in the area.

"We're here to help people with limited financial resources get the care they need," says Manager, Kate Healey. "For example, we offer adults low charges for doctor visits, free visits for all children (including those at school), free nurse visits, and small charges to cover the costs of some procedures."

In its first 18 months the service registered 2900 patients, offering many their first opportunity to develop a relationship with a health provider. This has enabled many health issues to be identified and treated and presented opportunities for health education and preventive care – something that has been out of reach for many.

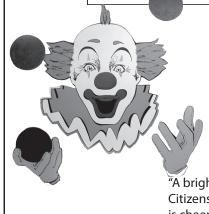

Although the service focuses on acute medical problems, it also addresses 'non medical' aspects of wellness, such as housing, education, employment and income. With 46 percent of its patients coming from migrant and refugee backgrounds, it also recognises that resettlement issues and language barriers can affect health, and continues to work closely with other services, including local schools, churches, community networks and groups.

UNITED WAY NZ

WORKING WITH THE SPIRIT OF GENEROSITY

"A bright clown face grinning from a wall of the Disabled Citizens sheltered workshop in Dominion Road [Auckland] is cheerful evidence that it's possible to juggle work with community needs – and benefit both." (Business Herald, 4 September 2002)

Established in 1975, United Way NZ aims to 'help build community capacity to improve quality of life through voluntary action and giving'. It does this by collecting contributions through payroll giving, as well as corporate donations and designated funding from overseas sources – then passing it all on to deserving causes in New Zealand.

In May 2002, the organisation added a new dimension to its 28 years of fundraising activities. It launched the Employee Community Involvement (ECI) programme, which links businesses with their communities through activities such as team challenges (like the Klein Healthcare Designers/Disabled Citizens Society project mentioned above) and development assignments, which lift the skills of individual employees while they complete a project for a community agency.

"ECI is an excellent way for companies to develop their teams, individuals and business while contributing to building a better community," says Adrian Feasey, United Way NZ's Executive Director.

Business, government and community sectors have expressed strong interest in the programme, and United Way NZ is now offering socially minded businesses a comprehensive range of complementary services – from 'community initiative strategy' development workshops to company-supported employee payroll giving.

"Given a little time, careful planning and support, bringing the private and community sectors together is a rewarding

J R McKENZIE YOUTH EDUCATION FUND

ASSISTANCE WITH EDUCATION FOR DISADVANTAGED CHILDREN

Sir John McKenzie established his Youth Education Fund way back in 1938, originally to help poor boys in Christchurch and Wellington to stay at school. Since then, the Fund has expanded to include all children in New Zealand, with great support from the McKenzie family. Sadly, it is needed as much today as it was 64 years ago.

Administered by Rotary, the Fund provides grants as a top-up to other assistance for disadvantaged children. This assistance extends to initiatives that aim to raise children's self-esteem, such as helping them to afford and wear a standard school uniform or to participate in other opportunities like school camps. A small part of the Fund is used for special grants for children with more expensive needs such as glasses, which will help them keep up with their classmates.

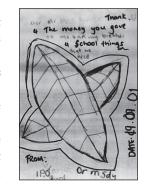

The Fund's income fluctuates so the number of children it can help each year also varies. However, over the decades thousands of young people have benefited from its existence – and recent thank-you letters say it all ...

"I would like to express my gratitude for your help in making my daughter's first day at High School a happy day. We were very worried as we could not even afford her shoes."

"We thank u very much for the grant, it has helped Mum heaps since our Dad left. It has been a big struggle but now it isn't."

"I would just like to say thank you very much for sponsoring me to go to the Outward Bound course... I now will always give everything a go and push myself to the ultimate. I also believe I can do much more than my mind thinks I can do."

REFUGEE EMPLOYMENT PROGRAMME

Iraqi refugee job seeker speaking at MCLaSS graduation ceremony.

HELPING REFUGEES INTO WORK: BUILDING OUR LEARNING

This year the J R McKenzie Trust has embarked on a threeyear programme designed to help people from refugee backgrounds to secure jobs.

"Refugees face huge challenges in settling into a new country, particularly when they have little money or English and have lived through horrific experiences," says the Trust's Executive Director, Iain Hines.

"One of the greatest challenges is joining the workforce – that's why we've developed the Refugee Resettlement Programme."

In late 2001 the Trust invited proposals from community groups to develop or extend projects on this theme. Five were chosen to take part, each offering a slightly different approach and with initiatives including volunteer mentoring, ESOL classes, self-employment support, job placement, job broking and case management. All the providers aim to involve people from refugee backgrounds in project design and implementation.

Each year the groups will meet for workshops focusing on planning, monitoring and evaluation; these are led by Sue Elliott, who has considerable experience in both refugee resettlement and project evaluation. Participants are also happy to share their learning with other agencies working in the field.

The programme is proving a fine example of funding collaboration. The Community Trust of Wellington and an anonymous private trust have joined as funding partners, and some projects have received further assistance through the Department of Work and Income, and Canterbury Development Corporation.

CENTRAL OTAGO WOMEN'S SUPPORT LINK

HELP, ADVICE AND ACCOMMODATION FOR WOMEN IN NEED

Central Otago Women's Support Link provides confidential support to women who find themselves in a situation with which they cannot cope. They may be the victims of domestic violence, sexual abuse, rape, emotional abuse, or any other form of unacceptable behaviour.

"We want women to realise that it's possible to start again and lead happy and fulfilling lives without being afraid of saying or doing the wrong thing," says Raewyn Cochrane, the organisation's Co-ordinator. "Our goal is to help them to help themselves, to achieve what they want from life, even if it's just one step at a time."

The team at Central Otago Women's Support Link have learned that every situation is different – and that wealth and status don't guarantee that life will be a bed of roses.

"Some women become experts at covering up for what to them is a living hell," says Raewyn. "Sometimes it's easier to hide than to find the courage to leave. But when they do, we're here to help them get through it – and seeing just one client achieve a new sense of independence and self-worth makes our job extremely worthwhile."

AL-NOOR CHARITABLE TRUST

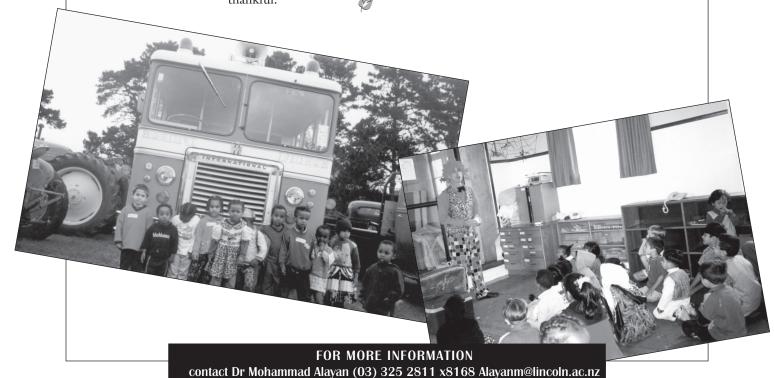

ENSURING SETTLEMENT FOR NEW MUSLIM MIGRANTS

The Al-Noor Charitable Trust is a relative newcomer to New Zealand's community sector. Its arrival reflects the immigration of many Muslims to New Zealand between 1993 and 1998, with the population now estimated at 25,000.

Established in 1998, the Trust aims to meet the educational needs of Muslim children living here, with goals that include establishing Islamic-based education institutions and generating employment opportunities in the community. It has already established three education programmes – the An-Nur Childcare Centre, the An-Nur OSCAR (Out of School Care and Recreation) programme and the An-Nur secondary school student support programme.

"These programmes have been well received in the community and have been a great help in integrating Muslim students into New Zealand public schools," says Mohammad Alayan, Chair of the Board of the Trust.

"A lot of the success can be attributed to a very committed management and staff team and its business-focused approach to planning, implementation, financial management and reporting. Of course, the support, co-operation and enthusiasm shown by parents, children and the Muslim community has always remained a source of motivation and encouragement. However, none of it would have been possible without great support from the New Zealand Government and funding agencies, to whom Al-Noor will ever remain indebted and thankful."

FINANCIAL REPORT FOR THE YEAR ENDING 31 MARCH 2002

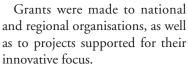

Alison Glen Administration Officer

Grants made this year totalled $2.9 million – an increase from $2.4 million in the previous year.

There were 733 applications and 533 grants. Regional grants averaged $2,730 and national grants $13,000. Grants ranged in size from $300, to $180,000 for the J R McKenzie Youth Education Fund.

The Trust made grants to organisations assisting a wide range of people.

Two thirds of grants assisted with core operating costs, including salaries, rent, volunteer costs etc. Organisations working specifically for and with Maori received 3.5% of grants, Pacific Island groups 3%, and 7% want to groups working specifically with other ethnic communities including refugees. Thirty percent of funds went to projects focused on children and youth, but only 3% went towards senior citizens.

Just over a quarter of all applicant groups were making their first application to the Trust. Most of these were less than two years old.

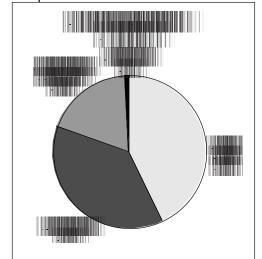

The Trust's administration costs for the year were $207,000, or 6.6% of total expenditure. They included significant legal fees related to the review of the Trust Deed.

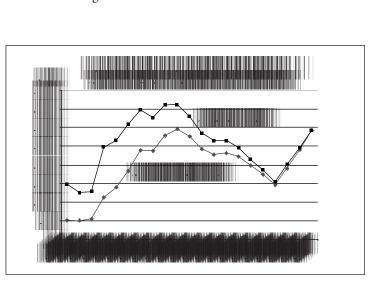

The balance sheet shows Total Trust Funds of just over $11 million.

A full set of audited accounts is available from the office.

The amount the Trust has been able to give in grants has fluctuated over the last two decades.

WHERE DOES THE MONEY COME FROM?

RANGATIRA LIMITED

This investment company was founded Sir John McKenzie in 1937. Rangatira's initial investment was a majority interest in J R McKenzie Limited, a New Zealand-wide chain of department stores. Over the years, Sir John and other family members have gifted shares in Rangatira to the J R McKenzie Youth Education Fund, the J R McKenzie Trust and other charities; today charitable bodies hold over 60% of the issued share capital.

Rangatira has a policy of investing in a range of listed companies, as well as unlisted New Zealand companies with growth potential. Today Rangatira is in a strong financial position, with shareholders' funds of $85 million, minimal indebtedness and substantial liquid funds available for investment.

Rangatira's directors are prominent in the business world. The Chair is Norman Geary, CBE.

In 2001-02 the Trust received almost $2.5 million from Rangatira Limited.

JAYAR CHARITABLE TRUST

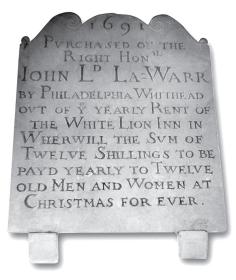

The Jayar Charitable Trust arose from the winding up of the Perpetual Trustees Estate and Agency Company of New Zealand, an investment body. The company's remaining assets were invested in a charitable trust which was given the name Jayar after a racehorse from the McKenzie family's Roydon Lodge stud.

Jayar has assets totalling $7 million. Its Chairperson is Peter McKenzie.

The Trust has very similar goals to those of the J R McKenzie Trust, to which it makes donations; these are passed on to community organisations through the McKenzie Trust distribution process. (This does not require a separate application.) Jayar's 2001-02 donation was $430,000.

The Jayar Trust is also able to receive donations and bequests.

Philanthropy three centuries ago: a plaque in an English church spotted during Iain's study tour.

Iti noa ana, he pito mata. With care, a small kumara will produce a harvest.
